MONDAY EVENING, JUNE 19.

Men Who are Not Afraid to Tackle

Mary Clemmer writes about Blaine and Tarbox in a sprightly sort of a way for the Cincinnati Commercial. The Washington Republican, she says, proclaims the destruction of Tarbox. It declares that he stood and destroyed himself, in fear and trembling, before the awful Blaine. The simple truth is that Tarbox made a clear and telling speech that had its due effect upon all minds not besotted and given over to Blaine. For any one to proclaim that Tarbox destroyed himself by such a speech, only proves how far one may get from reason and truth if given over to partisanship for one man. The Republicans sit around Blaine like so many curling spaniels. They laugh when he wants them to laugh, and they clap when he wants them to clap. They run about him and whisper in his ear with visions, no doubt, of foreign ministries, Cabinet seats and other clustering honors under their eyelids. In the light of manhood it is a sickening sight. The Republicans have no other such men. The Democrats have at least two such men-Lamar and Randolph Tucker; but they don't often condescend to try short swords with him. As Blaine was going through his favorite tactics he was watched silently by a man who sat near him-a man attired in Virginia gray. This is the nephew of John Randolph-Randolph Tucker, the most elequent man in the House of Representatives. This man is quite equal to attending to Blaine when he chooses to do so, but he seldom chooses. He listened to the lion roaring amid his cubs, with a contemplative, contemptuous gaze, which seemed to say: "I could roar louder than that and with more effect if I took the trouble." The truth about the speech which Blaine accused Tarbox of having is, that some one unknown sent it to Tarbox through the mail, where it was spied upon his desk .-He was no more responsible for its appearance than Blaine himself. Yet for its possession he was branded as "a thief as much as if he had held my watch," shouted Blaine, and "I have never recognized him since." O dear, O dear! What an awful fate not to be "recognized!"

THE ALEXANDRIA GAZETTE AND VIRGINIA ADVERTISER will soon celbrate its centennial year. More than three quarters of a century ago it grew into life a creation of wants and needs of the people of this section of Virginia. During all this period its prominent object has been to advance the interests of the people of whose life it is the daily chronicle. Its fortunes whose life it is the daily chronicle. Its fortunes have been their fortunes; it has shared their prosperity and suffered in their disasters. Its inspiration has been the desire to forward the best interests of the community in which it is located, and its own prosperity is, as it has been purposely made, inseparable from that of the community it aims to represent. When they was wish it hopes for a reward commensurate grow rich it hopes for a reward commensurate with its labors. While they are poor it expects to work with them and for them, expecting to with the greater growth and more extended experience of journalism. Every year NEW FRATURES will be added.

THE GAZETTE MEANS TO BE THE

NEWSPAPER OF VIRGINIA. It will furnish daily a complete account, with superfluities only lopped away, of all the current news of the As the interests of the people mainly centre at home, no pains will be spared to chronicle all matters occurring in the city and neighborhood, carefully excluding unseemly expressions or gross narrative as unfit for a journal that is treasured at many thousand hearthstones of Virginia. Especial attention will be devoted to presenting, as well from original sources of information as from its exchanges, the news of Virginia, especially such as relate to the development of the resources of the State.

Its contiguity to Washington gives the Gazette an early precedence over all the journals of the State in intelligence of the operations of the General Government, now of such vital importance to the people of the South. The proceedings of Congress, seldom so interesting as now, will be regularly reported in succinct form for its columns, but all matters of especial interest in Virginia will be given in detail, and the full text of all bills of local interest will be given. From the State Capital it will receive early and accurate accounts of the proceedings of the General Assembly and of all the operations of the State government likely to interest the peo-
